Joshiah: Well, once again, allow us to express our greetings to each of you and to express our gratitude for your allowing us this opportunity to, once again, enter into your vibrational level and to share and interact with each of you in your reality. Now, as is our custom, we would ask you, should you choose, to express the intent to allow for an even further thinning of the veil to allow for those entities who would be with us on this evening to also have the opportunity to enter into and to share with each of you in your vibrational level and in your reality. If you choose to express that intent and if you choose to participate in that silent communication that we speak of, we would, once again, assure you that there are a multitude of entities who are quite anxious to have that opportunity to interact and to share with each of you. Now we would ask for a moment's silence to allow for our adjusting the energy within your sacred space.

(Pause)

Well, thank you for allowing us that moment, and we, once again, express to each of you our gratitude for your creating this opportunity for us to interact and to share with each of you in your reality.

Now, once again, we remind you that there exists the possibility for you to interact with those entities who are with us this evening, [in] what we refer to as the silent communication—a telepathic exchange of information that you have but to express the intent for in order to facilitate and to participate in that activity. You have but to close your eyes, if you wish, and to allow your consciousness to shift and, as always, the energy that you have been creating within this sacred space will assist you in that consciousness shift and will facilitate that silent communication, that telepathic exchange of information, with those entities and would assist you in bringing to your consciousness that which you store, so to speak, or which you have within your subconsciousness, within the Piece of the One that you are. For indeed, all of the information that you desire is within each of you. You have but to have the desire, express the intent, believe, and you shall have the opportunity to access that information.

So, if you wish to participate in that silent communication, while you may not feel that you are hearing the words that we speak through our friend, nonetheless they most certainly are being registered within your physical hearing apparatus; and while you may not recall them, absolutely the message is there within your subconsciousness. And if that doesn't satisfy you, you can always listen to the recordings or read the transcriptions. All of those options are yours. So, we encourage you to participate in that silent communication, and to understand that many times the message that you receive not only through our words but through that silent communication is much more enhanced and many times much more pertinent to your individual requests and desires than is the message that we speak through our friend.

This evening we would speak to you of this transference into the new age and into the new energy. Now, while you who sit within our small group this evening many times have heard the message that you are indeed, as a human consciousness, involved in a transference and adjustment of the energy within your vibrational level, there are others outside of your small group who are seeking that knowledge. There are others who are seeking for methods and techniques, who are seeking to understand what it is that we speak of when we speak of the new age and the new energy, and the transference into that new age and new energy, and of the possibilities that you are creating which will allow you to consciously create your reality. And for many, this new age and new energy is a concept that they are having difficulty in grasping. It is a belief system that they are having difficulty bringing into their reality.

You see, so many wish to have the pathway laid out for them. They wish to have methods and techniques described that will make their pathway easier so that they do not have to develop their own individual methods and techniques. And they feel that this transference is a journey which is difficult and long to take. Well, we would suggest that all of those ideas are not necessarily true. It is not that they can't make it difficult, it is not that they can't have this need satisfied for methods and techniques, and it is not that they can't make it a long journey. However, it needn't be that way, absolutely not.

You see, you create your reality, absolutely. The linear time frame that you are involved in and experiencing in this transference into the new age and into the new energy is a human consciousness belief system. It is there because, as a group of creators existing within your vibrational level, you have chosen to establish a linear time frame for the completion of this transference into the new age and into the new energy (to be completed by approximately 2012). It is not necessary that it take that long, it is that you as a human consciousness have agreed to take that long. And that is fine. There is absolutely nothing wrong with that either. But the process of the transference need not be difficult. Absolutely not.

You see, we have used the analogy before of there being ships that were on the shore, and some that left the shore, and there were some people who got on ships but who never ever left the shore, and there were others who got on the ships that actually went on a trip. Well, we would expand upon that type of analogy. We would suggest that there are individuals who come down to the shore. They come to the beginning of this transference into the new age and into the new energy. They walk up and down the shore, and they look at all of the various vessels that are available to accomplish and to complete their journey. And they look out across the water and they see a fog. They can't see the other side, they can't see the end of the journey, and so for some it becomes a very frightening prospect to go out onto that open expanse of water and not know how far the journey is, not even believing that there might be an end to it.

So they walk up and down the shore, and they look at all of the available vessels and they try to choose one that will assure that their journey would be a safe one. There are some who look for huge vessels. They want all the bells and whistles. They want to have sleeping quarters. They want to have huge engines, and they want to have back-up engines, and they want to have all of the gimmicks that they can use to navigate this journey. So they spend a lot of time walking up and down the shore looking for a vessel.

And there are all types of vessels there. You can, if you choose, make it as complicated as you desire. But there are other simpler vessels as well. There are some that are simply smaller type vessels with a simple outboard engine, and there are even those that are just built like a canoe that you can get in and paddle.

Now, the key to this journey is that you begin to make the journey. You see, the vessel is not all that important. We have said to you many, many times that the methods and techniques are going to be individual methods and techniques, and they are not really all that important at all. It all depends on what you believe. What do you wish to accomplish? What do you desire to bring into your reality? This transference into the new age and into the new energy does not need to be complicated.

Now, for those who desire to make it complicated, you can spend very great amounts of time running up and down the shore trying to find which vessel will guarantee you passage, which vessel will not leave you stranded. And indeed there are some who become so engrossed in attempting to find the vessel that they never really begin the journey. They spend their time simply looking for methods and techniques. When this method doesn't seem to be the one that they desire, then they look for another one, and then another. They never really begin the journey.

Now, there are some who are so anxious to get on with the journey that they don't worry about the vessel. They just take whatever comes along. The very first thing they come upon, "Ah, this will do fine," and they begin the journey. Ironically, the journey can be a very short journey. You see, the God that individuals seek exists within you. This ability to create your reality consciously exists within you. It is not something that you have to go on a long extended trip to discover. It is within each of you, you have but to believe.

For those who understand that it is a safe journey, they choose the very first vessel that they come to, even if it is that canoe with just a paddle, they get in (inaudible) and paddle it away. They go into the fog bank and they discover that it is not really that far to the other side after all, it is just that you couldn't see it. But it is right there. Now, what is really interesting is that as you continue on this transference into the new age and into the new energy and as you now begin to complete that transference by manipulating and actually altering the very energy in the physical make-up of your entire universe, the journey is becoming much easier. And in fact, the irony of it is that you don't really need a vessel at all. You could walk across the water if you wanted to. It is not very deep. It is not dangerous, and there are no pitfalls. You cannot fail. You have but to express the intent and hold the desire, and this transference into the new age and into the new energy is an absolute. It is a given. You have but to believe.

And as you complete this linear time frame, which has already been shortened by your human consciousness agreement, you shall find it much easier to experience in your conscious state who and what you truly are. Even if it is only for a momentary glance, it is an enlightenment that would assure you that you do have the capacity to create your reality, that you are a Piece of God, and that you cannot fail. Those will become absolutes. You will no longer be concerned about those realities, so to speak—those belief systems that you brought in with you that you cannot change that safeguard this stepping behind the veil by assuring that you cannot be lost and that you cannot be at the mercy of someone else.

So, as you continue this transference into the new age and into the new energy and as your linear time frame progresses to the point where you are reaching the alteration of the energy within your vibrational level, then the journey becomes much, much easier. As we have suggested already, you don't need to worry about developing vessels to cross the water and enter into the fog, into that unknown. You can simply walk there. Indeed, as you continue on this transference into the new age and into the new energy, you will find that it becomes so easy that it would be like walking over a bridge, you don't even need to get your feet wet. Still, there will be those who will run up and down the shore checking out the vessels, looking for the biggest one, looking for the most complicated one, making it very difficult, based upon their belief systems.

So, we urge you, once again, to develop your own methods and techniques. Do not feel that you are in that trap where you must run up and down the shore and find the most elaborate vessel and try to develop the most elaborate techniques and methods. It is not that difficult. This transference into the new age and into the new energy is simply something that you can accomplish by expressing the intent, holding the belief, and by developing self-love. You see, the ultimate technique is love. And self-love is the key. We suggest that many, many times, and it is worth repeating. Self-love is the key. It is the ultimate technique. It is the ultimate method. It will guarantee your transference into this new age and into the new energy. It is the bridge so that you don't even have to get your feet wet.

Now, there are many within your human consciousness within your vibrational level who would desire to hear that message, who would desire to understand that the methods and the techniques are individual methods and techniques. They can be unique to each individual, and there is no right way and there is no wrong way. We can stand here and tell you that if you jump up and down in the morning, and turn around ten times in one direction, and then stand on your head for ten minutes that that will assist you, or we could give you all types of elaborate meditations that you could follow, and give you all types of techniques that you could follow; and there are those individuals who would follow it, who would believe that that would assist them. Ironically, when you begin to look outside of yourself for the answers, when you begin to look outside of yourself for someone else to create your reality, you begin to give up. You begin to give up responsibility for that which you are experiencing. And it is exactly the opposite that you must achieve in order to accomplish this transference into the new age and into the new energy—and that is, you must accept responsibility for what you create.

You must accept the responsibility for the methods and the techniques that work for you. And if they don't work for someone else, that is not important. There is no judgment on this transference into the new age and the new energy. There is no right way or wrong way. There are no absolute methods that you must follow. You must simply express the desire, hold the belief, and you will develop your own techniques.

Learn to love yourself. Once again, that is the ultimate technique and the ultimate method. When you learn to love yourself, you will begin to understand that you can create anything you wish from a position of love. For there is only one way to create, and that is from a position of love. You do it in your subconsciousness constantly. The idea is to bring that into your consciousness state. The idea is to bring into your consciousness state the concept of self-love, of unconditional love, and thereby bring into your consciousness your individual methods and techniques for accomplishing this transference into the new age and into the new energy.

Once again, as you continue on your journey in this transformation, and as your human consciousness continues on this linear time frame that has been put in place to accomplish the transference of the energy within your vibrational level into the new age and into the new energy, you shall find it much easier to discover what methods work for you, what techniques work for you. You shall find it much easier to consciously get a grasp of what your beliefs are that are influencing your realities that you are experiencing. And you shall discover that you don't have to run up and down the shore and look for the vessel that will best accomplish your crossing.

So, once again, we would encourage you to allow this message to reach those who would desire to hear it. For once again, there are many within your vibrational level who are interested in and who are involved on this transference into the new age and into the new energy. They are on the journey, if you wish to use that analogy, and they feel and believe that they must be led. They believe that it is a difficult passage. They believe that there must be someone to show them the way, and we would suggest that that very belief is a hindrance, and that they would be better off to look within to discover what methods and what techniques will work for them, to realize that it is a simple transference. It is not a difficult task. It is not something that requires all types of discipline. Absolutely not.

We will also, once again, reiterate that once you begin on the journey, you cannot come back. You cannot return. Now, that is rather an absolute statement, and absolutely if you wish to attempt to come back, you can attempt to go back into that old age and into that old energy, but you cannot forget. And consequently, as we have suggested so many times before, you would experience dis-ease and discomfort. You cannot go back once you have an awakening. Once you become aware of who and what you truly are, then you cannot go back to blaming someone else for what it is that you are experiencing. You cannot set aside that experience of self-love, and you cannot set aside the love you express and feel for others. You cannot go back.

Now, you may ask why on Earth would you want to go back? And we have suggested many times before that as you make that choice to enter into the new age and into the new energy, there exists the very strong possibility that your life will change quite dramatically. There exists the very strong possibility that you will suddenly find yourself attracted to different and new relationships. And old relationships that once seemed important to you will seem to simply fade or evolve out of the way, so to speak.

Now, we are not suggesting that is going to be a traumatic experience. There are, however, those who feel quite comfortable in their situation and who desire to remain in that old age and old energy, or desire to stop this transference into the new age and into the new energy and not progress any further. Well, while you may not go back, you can certainly stop at any point, if you wish, and suggest, "Well, that is far as I want to go. I am quite comfortable now in creating what it is that I am creating. I am quite happy that I can intuitively know when my phone is going to ring, and I like all of those little kind of superficial type of reality creation processes."

And we are not suggesting that they are not important—absolutely they are, but they are not the main ones, you see. They are not to the extent that it is possible for you to create. They are not to the extent where it is possible for you to alter your DNA, for example. They are not to the extent where it is possible for you to alter your conception and your creation of abundance. They are not to the point where it is possible for you to alter your interactions and your relationships with others. And they are not to the point where you develop the absolute feeling of self-love that was possible for you to experience, and thereby not only experience love for others, but also experience love from others.

So, for those who chose to stop this transference into the new age and into the new energy, and who are quite happy with where they are but do not desire to necessarily alter their old age, old energy types of relationships and existence, that is fine. Once again, there is no judgment other than the judgment that you place upon yourself. And for those who choose to remain in the old age and in the old energy, that is fine as well. There is nothing wrong with that, and they are not to be judged or condemned. Absolutely not.

Their creation of their reality is as legitimate as anyone else's. And it is equally as powerful as anyone else's. And they are creating their reality as absolutely as anyone else is, including those who choose to enter into the new age and the new energy. The only difference is that in the old age and in the old energy you can still blame someone else for your reality creation. You can still hold those beliefs that you somehow are not responsible, and you can create from a position of default. Whereas, as you enter into and complete this transference into the new age and into the new energy, it becomes very difficult, in fact it becomes impossible, for you to blame someone else for your reality creation process. And when you attempt to do that, you know that it is not true.

And as you complete this transference into the new age and into the new energy, you shall also have the capacity to create your reality consciously—and that is something that is not possible in the old age and in the old energy. That is something that is not possible if you do not accept the responsibility for your reality creation process, if you don't accept the possibility and the absolute reality that you are a Piece of God, and that you cannot fail.

So, to choose to remain in that old energy is not in any way something which is looked upon as being wrong, or something which is judged as being wrong or evil. Absolutely not. It is a choice that individuals can and do make. And it is a legitimate choice.

Now, again, as you complete this transference into the new age and into the new energy, in terms of your linear time frame, there exists the most strong possibility that those entities who now choose to remain in the old age and in the old energy shall end this particular incarnational period, if you wish to use a linear time frame definition, and they shall reincarnate. There exists at this time, based upon your present understanding and belief systems, the very strong possibility that they will reincarnate with that transference into the new age and into the new energy already complete. They will understand absolutely who and what they truly are, they will accept responsibility for their reality creation, and that they will absolutely know that they cannot fail.

Those new incarnations shall be the children who will no longer ask for things, no longer look outside of themselves for some type of entity to deliver to them or give to them what they want, but rather will step up and demand whatever it is that they desire; and not demand it from others, but demand it from within themselves, knowing that they have within themselves the capacity to create whatever it is that they desire. So, through the process of evolution, you as a human consciousness, based upon your present understanding and belief systems, will accomplish this transference into the new age and into the new energy. And, once again, there exists the very strong possibility that there will be no entities left within your vibrational level who run up and down the shore searching for the vessel that will assist them to cross this very narrow and very safe channel of water and accomplish that transference into the new age and into the new energy.

Now, we know that each of you has heard this message before, and, again, we suggest that we repeat it because there are those who have not, and we would encourage you to use whatever methods are available to you to express that message to those who would wish to hear it.
