Q and A

Joshiah: Once again, we express our gratitude for your inviting us back into your vibrational level and offering us this opportunity to once again share with you in your reality.

We would remind you that the energy that you have created within this sacred space has remained and that the entities that have accompanied us that have used the opportunity that you presented to enter into your vibrational level are still willing to interact with you on that silent communication, you have but to express the intent, if you choose. The choice is yours.

Now. We spoke to you of the new age and the new energy and of the opportunities that exist in the so-called future that you are creating—for you to consciously create your vibrational level, for you to consciously create your realities. There are those existing within your present incarnational period, if you wish, within your vibrational level who would use many of the pieces of information that you are being given not only through this channel but through others to interpret in their own manner, to interpret based upon the exact transformation of the vocabulary that is used to express the concepts or the ideas. And that becomes very difficult because many times the concepts, the ideas if you wish, are thoughts [or] feelings that are expressed and translated through a vocabulary and the vocabulary lacks in its ability to give an accurate description of that concept or that idea or that feeling.

We have suggested many times, for example, that you are a Piece of the One, and that in itself leads to believe that there must be this huge One and that you are but a piece of it. And yet that is not accurate. There is only a concept of space in your conscious state. Space is an illusion. Your entire vibrational level is an illusion and the concept of space is not accurate in terms of how things are when you are in your so-called subconscious state, in your dream states, or your between incarnation state where this illusion of space does not exist. And so, when we suggest you are a Piece of the One, there are many who would take that particular phrase and assume then that there must be this one large One and you are but a piece of it. And that is not accurate because there is no greater or smaller but rather equal.

Now. If you were to carry that concept into the next step, there are those individuals who would suggest that if you create your reality and you create it all, then you must create all that you perceive of the other individuals involved in your reality as well. And that too is not accurate. That is using, once again, a literal perception and translation of the use of a vocabulary. It is not entirely accurate.

There are those who would suggest then, “Well, that is all there is.” When we suggest to you that the answers to the questions that you have come from withinside, that you have within you all of the knowledge, then there are those who would assume, “Well then, that is it. There is no other knowledge than that which is within you.” And in a sense that is true. You have access to all of the knowledge that exists. Each of you do.

You are each individuals and yet you are no greater and no less than the other. And there are other individuals, if you wish, there are other entities—for lack of a better phrase or better term—there are other entities existing in other vibrational levels who are also an equal Piece of the One.

Now. There are those individuals existing within your vibrational level who would like to give away their power to those entities that exist outside of your vibrational level and would suggest that if they exist outside of this vibrational level that they must be somewhat more advanced individuals. And that is absolutely not true.

You exist within a rather unique vibrational level where you, as individuals and as a human consciousness, have collectively put in place a type of energy—and for lack of a better term we use the phrase “an electromagnetic type of energy”—that prevents interference in your creation process. Interference only from the concept that you, in your conscious state, have chosen to limit your understanding of who and what you truly are.

You see, you create your reality absolutely. Other entities existing in other vibrational levels create their reality as well. To assume that those other individuals existing on those other vibrational levels would wish to create your reality is a false assumption.

You, as individuals, have put in place an electromagnetic type of energy that prohibits other individuals being involved in your reality creation process simply because you do not wish to bring into your consciousness that full understanding of who and what you are and of the reality creation process in order to make this reality seem real; in order to facilitate your beliefs of space and time and the other beliefs that this is somehow all that there is; that while you are in your conscious state that that is the most important state that you can be in. That is the interference that you chose to limit to bring in that understanding.

Individuals existing on the other vibrational levels cannot interfere because of your choice. However, it would be presumptuous to assume that they even wish to interfere. It is like existing within your family structure and you have your own interactions and your own idiosyncrasies and your traditions that are unique to your family. You have absolutely no desire to take that particular idiosyncrasy or family tradition and force it upon someone else. You allow them to have their idiosyncrasies and their tradition. Mostly you have absolutely no desire to interfere or to adopt their idiosyncrasies or traditions.

Similarly, other individuals existing in other vibrational levels have an interest in what you are doing within this vibrational level simply because it is so unique, but they do not wish to interfere. They have absolutely no desire to attempt to create your reality for you. That belief—and it is a belief that there are other individuals existing outside of your vibrational level that create for you—is a human consciousness belief.

When you are in your altered state of consciousness you understand absolutely that you create your reality. When you are in that altered state of consciousness you understand as well that each individual creates their own reality. That does not mean, however, that all that you perceive is simply your creation without the assistance of others. You have agreed, if you wish, in that human consciousness sense to participate in the reality creation process. You are no more and no less than each other, but to assume that you are all that is to assume then as well, that there is no other. And yet you are a Piece of that All that Is, if you would, no more and no less than any other. A difficult concept to explain because of the limitations of your vocabulary, because of the concepts of time and space.

Because we suggest that you are a Piece of the One, then individuals would assume then that there must be a huge One. And when we suggest that you create all that it is that you perceive, then there are individuals who would suggest that entities such as us could not exist because if you create all that you perceive then you must create us. Those phrases, those explanations, have their limitations and that is why we frequently suggest that you enter into that meditative state, that altered state of consciousness, and become involved in that silent communication where the transference of concepts, of ideas, of feelings is much more accurate and complete without the limitations of a vocabulary.

When you get a glimpse of who and what you truly are then you are getting a glimpse of the understanding of the reality creation process not only within your vibrational level but on a much broader concept of all the vibrational levels that exist. Time and space are belief systems, human consciousness illusions that do not exist in other vibrational levels.

And so, when we use terminology such as “a multitude of vibrational levels” there is that human consciousness desire to put that into some type of perspective based upon space. It just does not exist. The vibrational levels exist, if you wish, within the same space, within the same time. They exist in the now. And as we suggested earlier, even that explanation of the now has limitations placed upon it by your belief systems and your vocabulary.

And so, to believe that indeed if you create it all then you are the ultimate creator and all that you perceive is simply your creation in a sense that is true. It is your creation because you participate in that creation, but allow others who are also that spark of consciousness to have their place in their creation that you are involved in, that you agreed to participate in.

You are responsible for the interactions that you experience in your day-to-day activities. Absolutely. The key to that is that each of you are responsible. It is not one creating it all and the others experiencing it. Absolutely not. You agree at some level.

And many times as you enter into this new age and this new energy you will be experiencing that agreement at the conscious level or near enough the conscious level that you can get an understanding and a perception of that agreement, of that belief system, of that contract, if you wish, that you have entered into to have that experience. And as you continue this transformation into this new age and this new energy and as you begin to get an understanding of a glimpse of what it is that you truly are, of the unlimited possibilities that exist, you shall have the opportunity to consciously experience the self-love that we speak of; to get a grasp of the understanding that the only true creation process is from a position of love; and to understand that the amount of entities that exist are limitless.

Once again, time and space are your concepts. That there is a linear progression of anything is a human concept. It is a human consciousness creation that perpetuates the illusion that you exist in in your conscious state. You are a Piece of the One, equal to, no less and no more than any other Piece of the One. You are a spark of consciousness, if you wish, that has the capacity to create, that is as small as you could possibly conceive and as unlimited as your perception of space can be. Equal to, no greater and no less than any other spark of consciousness. Equal to, allowing that the others can also exist. Allowing that there is an interaction. Allowing that when you allow the other to exist, to accept the responsibility for their creation and their participation in your perception of the reality, then you allow them the opportunity to experience that self-love as well. And you can share in that love. You can express it not only for yourself but for others. And through that expression, through that synergy, if you wish, of love, the creation process becomes unlimited.

When you believe that you somehow have a power that is only available to you and not to others then you limit your ability to grasp the understanding that there is limitless powers for each. When an individual believes that they somehow possess the ability to create a reality that is not accessible to others then you limit that self-love and that ability to express love for others and the ability to allow others to experience that unlimited potential that exists within each of them.

For as you hold that particular concept that you are somehow more powerful there are those individuals who would desire to participate in facilitating you to allow you to feel, while you are in your conscious state, that you somehow are more powerful. You would allow others to be involved in that reality creation process where they become a victim, where they become less powerful, where they can somehow feel that you are more worthy or that you have a greater access to this reality creation process. Understand that it is an illusion. It is an illusion for each of you in your conscious state.

You can create whatever it is that you desire. You are an equal Piece of the One. You create based upon your beliefs and your choices. And if you hold the belief firm enough that you are somehow superior, understand that that is an illusion. When you hold the belief that you are somehow inferior, understand that that also is an illusion based upon a belief system, and understand that you can create whatever it is that you desire. And when you desire to hold in your conscious state the concept of who and what you truly are, and when you desire to accept the responsibility for your creation process, and when you allow others to accept that responsibility, you express to them a gift of unconditional love. And then you have the capacity to grow in terms of your conscious understanding of who and what you truly are and to bring into your consciousness that unlimited love potential that exists withinside each of you.

For once again, you only create from a position of love. It is the ultimate technique. There is absolutely nothing that you experience that is not created from a position of love somewhere within your consciousness, somewhere within that portion of who and what you truly are, that spark of consciousness that creates—only creates—from a position of love. Each of you create your reality. Absolutely. And you create it from a position of love. If you wish to do it consciously then bring that love into your conscious state. And to bring that love into your conscious state you will find that you will express love to others and, once again, will allow others that capacity to accept the responsibility for their creation, albeit interacting with yours. Nonetheless, accept that responsibility for their creation and thereby give them a gift of unconditional love. And it shall be returned many times over.

Now, if you have any questions for us we would be willing to attempt to answer them for you.

Questioner: Do you have any information you would like to share with us about the Mayan civilization and the Pyramids?

Joshiah: We have spoken of the pyramids and of various civilizations that have existed in your so-called past. Many of those entities existing in that period retained what we refer to as memories, if you wish, of—once again, based for your belief in a linear time frame—incarnations in the Atlantean periods and the understanding of their capacity to create whatever it was that they desired. Individuals existing within this so-called current incarnational period are the same individuals that existed in your so-called past that are creating and experiencing those particular incarnational periods simultaneously in the now.

It is rather interesting that as a human consciousness you believe in that linear time frame and you believe that what happened in the past is set. And you look back at those so-called Egyptian periods and believe that what occurred has occurred and cannot be altered. And yet when you enter into your dream states and you change some beliefs and you change some desires that you wish to experience in your so-called conscious state in this illusion that you are participating and creating, you actually alter your past and you do it quite regularly on a frequent basis. And those so-called past experiences of that Egyptian period also alters and your perceptions of those so-called past experiences also alters. And suddenly without your conscious knowledge you have an entirely different history.

That is a difficult concept to grasp in your conscious state because you believe this is real. You believe that this is the stuff that you cannot alter. When you enter into your dream states then you believe, "Well, there if I do some lucid dreaming I can change what I am actively participating in. I can actually change the outcome of my dream." You can enter into an altered state of consciousness that you refer to as a meditative state and in there you can have all types of so-called illusions and in there you can alter them, you can change them, you can direct them. While, ironically, while you are in your conscious state you exist in a very illusionary reality and you can and do alter it constantly. Once again, a difficult concept to grasp in your consciousness.

Enter into your deepest dream states and bring back some of your memories; although it [will] be distorted, they are, you will get glimpses of that existence in the now and of the ability to manipulate your reality. Which is exactly what you are doing. What occurred in your so-called history is continuously altering.

And it is rather interesting that many times—to use your reference of a linear time frame—you go back into that past and you alter what occurred in that past so that you can make a discovery in this incarnational period. You are actually not going back in the past, you are simply altering your perception of a vibrational level that you exist in. You are altering the time frame, if you wish, that you exist in and you are influencing other incarnational periods, you are influencing the illusion and you are changing it. And if you do it regularly, continuously. You do it as individuals, you do it as a society, and you do it in a human consciousness format. And you all agree to it. And you are all very good at entering back into your conscious state and making it so real, when it is actually an illusion.

Individuals who existed in what you refer to as the Egyptian times, in what you refer to as the Roman times, and you can check through all of your so-called history and you will find examples of individuals who had the capacity to perform what seemed like absolutely miraculous and impossible feats. We would suggest that those individuals simply grasped the understanding of the illusion and used their capacity to manipulate the illusion. As you enter into this new age and new energy, once again, you shall have that capacity. You shall have the opportunity to create realities that are beyond your wildest imagination. And as we have suggested many times, the only limitation to your reality creation process is your imagination. If you can imagine it, you can create it. Absolutely.

The individuals existing in that so-called Egyptian period many times had that understanding and created what seems to be—even by your scientific terms in this so-called modern technology—created structures, did types of constructions that cannot even be duplicated with this so-called modern technology.

An interesting phenomena that you can create whatever it is you imagine. Not only can, but do. What occurred in your past occurs simultaneously with your present, and you can and do alter and influence each other on a continual basis. You simply don't retain that memory in your conscious state. If you were to bring into your conscious state in any one of your particular incarnational periods, in any one of the so-called little plays that you are involved in, if you were to attempt to hold in your conscious state the entire knowledge that you hold in your so-called subconsciousness, you would lose touch with this particular vibrational level of conscious states. You would lose touch with your so-called reality. The illusion would disappear, and those who continue to participate in the illusion in the conscious state would look at you like you were absolutely insane because you could not function in the so-called conscious state and hold in the conscious state all that it is that you participate in in your so-called subconsciousness.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: Do you have any information about alternative energy?

Joshiah: We have many times talked about individuals, once again, in your so-called past, who understood this was an illusion that you are experiencing, created from an unlimited source of energy which is what you are.

You see, it is an illusion. That is the key to understand, that it is an illusion, that the energy that you use to create this illusion is your energy. You believe that there is a limitation because you believe in time and space and there always must be a limitation. And yet in an illusion there can be no limitations. When you are involved in an illusion, when you are involved in an imaginary creation, how can there be a limitation? The only limitations to the energy that is available to you is the limitation that you put on by your imagination, by your choices, by your belief systems. It is an illusion.

There is an unlimited amount of energy that is available. You have but to tap into it. You have but to believe. You see, human consciousness states in this particular incarnational period have chosen not to hold that belief. So while we can express to you it is there, it is like expressing to you that it is an illusion. You can get a glimpse of that concept and sometimes it is, "Yes, it is an illusion. You see, I can understand that. I can see where there are certain things in my day-to-day activities that are illusions and I can manipulate them and change them. Aah, but there so many things that I can't change because they are real. Because they are the things that are beyond my control." You hold that belief system because you choose to bring that into your consciousness the same way you choose to bring into your consciousness that there is a limitation to the energy that is available to you.

This entire vibrational level, your entire creation, is an illusion. If it is an illusion based upon your imagination, how can there be a limit to [the] amount of energy or the type of energy that is available to you? Only because you believe. Only because you desire to create that illusion. There is unlimited amounts of energy available in any type of form that you can imagine. And when you existed in the so-called Lemurian period and—once again to use a linear time frame for a reference—when you existed in the Atlantean periods you—we refer to each of you that existed within that time frame—consciously understood that the energy that was available was limitless and easily accessible. It was a belief system that was held.

The key to creating your reality is to understand that you create it all. You create it from the belief systems based upon what it is that you desire. There are absolutely no limitations beyond your imagination. You can have whatever it is that you desire. You are the creators. You are the ones that build this entire illusion. And you absolutely cannot fail at some time to come to understand that.

When you exist in your so-called meditative and dream states you experience absolutely no limitations to the energy that is available to you to create whatever it is that you desire. You don't need to have these illusionary limitations that you place upon yourselves. And when you are experiencing that meditative or altered state of consciousness type of reality you get a glimpse of how absolutely powerful you are, how the only limitations are the ones that you desire.

You exist in an illusion. The energy that is available to create the illusion is limitless, as is your illusion. Its only limitation is your imagination. Ironically, that very limitation is one that you choose to put in place by your belief systems. And you choose it, once again, for a very specific reason and that is to lend credibility to the illusion, to make it real so you can experience a very intense range of feelings. It is all that simple. Like so many things, it is so simple that it becomes difficult.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: When we alter our reality, does that reality still exist then? Does it just go poof? It can't be destroyed, that other reality, so all those different realities would just be out there existing? Where do they go?

Joshiah: You see, once again you, believe in a concept of time and space, and that if it exists it must be somewhere. But there is no space. Space is an illusion. It is a human consciousness belief system that perpetuates and lends validity to this reality that you are experiencing. It is an illusion. Your entire vibrational level is an illusion. When you experience an illusion that you understand as an illusion, do you believe that it continues to exist? Or do you believe that it is an illusion that can be duplicated if you wish, or not duplicated if you wish?

Questioner: Well, what is an illusion? Is it energy that once we don't think about it it just goes from what we think back into energy?

Joshiah: You see, once again, we are limited by a vocabulary because "an illusion" leaves the concept that it must exist. If it is an illusion, it must be there whether it is real or imagined or whatever.

You exist in the now. You can experience whatever it is that you desire. When you look at a movie upon a screen, when you are involved and participating in that movie, you understand absolutely that there is nothing upon that screen but light. It is an illusion. And when you turn off the light does it disappear? Where does it go? Because you have experienced it on the screen does it mean that it must be there forever? Or was it simply an illusion and was created for the purpose of experiencing the feelings associated [with it]? When you go to the movie you go for that experience.

No matter what the illusion is that you are attempting to experience, you go to experience the feelings associated with that illusion. But when the movie is over, does the illusion continue on the screen for ever and ever? Is that set aside? "Okay, we have got that illusion, we will put it in this slot and that is where it exists forever." You create that illusion upon that screen for a certain period of—once again, to use your linear time frame—for a certain period of time for the purposes of experiencing the feelings associated. That is why you create it. You understand when it is on the screen that it is absolutely nothing. It is absolutely illusion. It is a form of lights being projected upon a flat screen. It has absolutely no depth and yet it can appear to have depth because it is such a very good illusion. But nonetheless, it is an illusion. It does not exist, other than you believe that it exists.

Questioner: So then, the substance of illusion is energy and we just play with energy and make things, like putty, and then when our thought goes to something else, that energy is still there but it is just nothing?

Joshiah: It is a difficult concept to grasp because you have, once again, that continuous belief that it must be something or nothing. That it must exist or it doesn't exist. There is absolutely no inbetween. There has got to be this linear comparison. And that in itself is an illusion.

When you are in your dream state, when you leave that dream state and come into your consciousness, what do you believe happens to that dream state? Does it disappear? I mean, it is an illusion, isn't it? I mean, you can understand that you are simply daydreaming, if you wish, or you are dreaming. It is not real. I mean, that is your subconsciousness, it is not really real. That is just imaginary. And so, if you wish to duplicate it you can go into a meditative state and bring it back and experience [it] if you wish, but it is not real. I mean, it doesn't have to be stored anywhere because it is not real. It is nothing. It is an illusion.

Ironically, you exist in an illusion constantly, including this particular illusion that you experience in your conscious state. The idea to grasp is that because it is an illusion does not mean that it is not important. Because what you experience in your meditative state is your imagination does not mean that it does not have an importance. It does not mean that it is not there for the purpose of allowing you to experience the feelings associated with it. Existence through all of the vibrational levels is for the purposes of experiencing, of experiencing feelings. Each and every thing that you do in your conscious state in this vibrational level, in this illusion, you do for the purposes of experiencing the feelings.

When you attend the movie theater you don't go there because you simply want to sit there and vegetate. You go there because you wish to experience the feelings. When you create a reality in this illusionary conscious state, even if that reality is such that you are in a so-called vegetative state, you do so for the feelings associated with that illusion. It doesn't mean it is not real, it doesn't mean you have to take it and store it and keep it in a particular spot wherever because that is something that is there and so you must keep it.

It is similar to the creations you have in your meditative state and in your sleep state. They are real. When you come back into your consciousness state you feel that they were simply illusions. They were illusions but they were more real than the illusion that you experience in your conscious state. They were many times in your sleep state the setting up, if you wish, of the beliefs, of the agreements, of the contracts to create the illusion that you experience in your conscious state. It doesn't mean that you have to store them. It doesn't mean that they have to have a space, for time and space are illusions.

You exist in the now. You are the smallest portion that you can perceive and you are the largest portion that is possible for you to imagine. Time and space are illusion. They are human concept belief systems that lend validity to this reality that you experience in your conscious state. It doesn't mean it is not important; it means that it is an illusion, that it is your imagination.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: In our Atlantean lifetimes, in our conscious state when we accessed the unlimited energy that we knew was available to us, did we do that simply through our imagination in our conscious state? Or did we create some sort of physical technology to access that?

Joshiah: You create it as you create within this vibrational level through your belief states, through your desires, through your imagination, through your belief systems.

Now. In this particular incarnational period there are those who would use scientific proof for absolutely everything that occurs in your conscious state. It is an illusion and you can create that scientific proof if that is what you desire to have. There are others that it means no difference to them whether they can scientifically prove it or not. And many times they experience particular phenomena that they cannot explain that they do not have any desire to have an explanation for.

Now. In the Atlantean periods there were various so-called physical creations—inventions, if you wish—that were in place that created unlimited amounts of energy. Now. They were no more real than the particular creations that you have within this particular incarnational period to create the energy that you use to fulfill the reality creation process that you experience in your conscious state. That is what you desire to experience.

In the Atlantean periods there were, once again, individuals who had an understanding of the concept of reality creation and as we explained before, many ...

(Tape is turned over.)

Joshiah: ... did not share it, if you wish, with the other individuals that were actively participating in that incarnational period. Understand that that was an agreement. That were not individuals necessarily having access to any knowledge that was not available to others, but rather agreeing to facilitate each other's reality creation process by one having that capacity in their conscious state, the others choosing not to bring it into their conscious state. It was not necessarily one having a power over the other, but rather the other allowing them to have that power. The same as you create in this particular incarnational period in this vibrational level that you are currently experiencing.

So, within that Atlantean period, what we refer to as the Atlantean period, there were those individuals who had that capacity to understand the unlimited possibilities that were available in their conscious state and bring it into their reality and to create what even within your so-called scientific realm today would be apparatus that would not work. To create and invent, if you wish, and to construct various types of instruments that allowed them to access unlimited power that would not work in your current incarnational period because, you see, you don't believe that they would work.

You, as individuals, were involved in that Atlantean period. You created that illusion as readily and as easily as you create this illusion based upon the beliefs that you hold. As individuals begin to believe that it is possible to tap into that unlimited sources of energy and as individuals desire to have scientific proof that such a thing exists, then they shall create the reality to support the belief. They shall create the instruments that allow you to tap into that unlimited source of energy.

And of course, if you are going to do it consciously it has to be real. You have to prove it scientifically, otherwise it won't work, because you hold that belief. You hold the belief that it is real and if it is real then you must be able to duplicate it scientifically. And if you can't, then, well, it won't work because it is simply not true, it is an illusion.

However, in the Atlantean period individuals understood the concepts of reality creation process in their conscious state and they created the so-called instruments, if you would, they created and had the inventions and constructed certain apparatus that allowed them to have access to what they knew was absolute unlimited sources of energy. It is a technology that has been available throughout your entire vibrational level, throughout your entire range, if you wish, of incarnational periods.

You see, it is an illusion. When you grasp the basic concepts that you exist in an illusion, that you create it all, that you are a Piece of the One, and that you cannot fail; and when you apply those basic belief systems to any part or to any portion of your creation, of your illusion, then you understand, once again, that you can create whatever it is you desire and the only limitation is your imagination. The only limitation is your imagination. If there are any absolutes in your vibrational level, if there is anything that is real, it is that you create based upon your belief systems and your imagination.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: I had a sense that the little thrill that went through me when we were bending spoons at Monroe was tapping into that energy. Because it is that inner child, that it was such a thrill. Is it? Or is that just my belief?

Joshiah: When you have something in this conscious state you—and we hesitate to use the term, but—expend amounts of energy to sustain the illusion. Ironically, you alter that belief when you alter that understanding that it is not real. Then you can absolutely alter your reality, even those things that seem to be solid. And when that occurs, when you get a grasp of that understanding and you begin to bring into your consciousness the understanding of how illusory this reality is, and when you bring that into your consciousness you can absolutely feel giddy. You can absolutely feel “Ah-ha! It is an illusion, I can prove it to myself. Look at this! I can do what I couldn’t do before because I didn’t believe I could do it. And if I can bend something like a very solid object simply because I believe that it is no longer solid, then where do my limitations end?” And it is a glimpse of the unlimited possibilities.

It is an illusion and if you imagine it as an illusion and you desire to alter it and you believe you can, then the only limitation is your imagination. When you grasp that concept and when you hold it even for a moment in this conscious state, it can make you feel absolutely limitless power and very giddy and you begin to get a glimpse of who it is you truly are and how illusory this reality really is.

Does that answer your question?

Questioner: Yes, thank you.

Joshiah: It is rather interesting that individuals who are in a group who hold a common belief system or desire or imagination can have more success at that type of interaction than when an individual attempts it alone. It is rather interesting that when we are involved in this type of interaction, when we are interacting through our friend with each of you and there are other entities present, that the more involved who hold the common belief, the more intense the energy, the more encharged, if you wish, you feel when we are finished with our interaction with each of you.

Once again, as we have suggested in the past, when more than one individual holds a belief and a desire to bring into your reality a creation, then the synergy is multiplied in terms of the possibilities of that creation occurring. And when individuals group together and desire to determine that it is an illusion and that they have the capacity to manipulate so-called solid objects, that they are much more successful as a group than as an individual because of that synergy, because of that energy that comes with a multiple belief force in creating a reality that they all have a desire to experience.

If you have any questions, we would be willing to answer. If not, we would bid you farewell for this afternoon.

(End of questions. We thank Joshiah and the others.)

We would like to, once again, thank each of you for the opportunity that you present for us to enter into and to share in your reality. For once again, the feelings that you experience are of an intensity that is not accessible in our vibrational level and we are very interested from that perspective. We do, however, have absolutely no desire to influence or to manipulate or to change your reality for you. You have the capacity to do that for yourselves. You don’t need us or anyone else to do it for you.

And so until the next time that you offer us this opportunity, we would, once again, express our gratitude and bid you farewell, with love and with peace. ✨
